WHAT'S HOT TO WATCH

BEEN tuning in to the Ladz Channel recently? What, you haven't? Yeah, well, I can't say I'm entirely surprised, seeing as it doesn't exist. It's actually been invented by investigative journalist Donal MacIntyre as part of his latest copper-approved attempt to nail various slippery individuals. In tonight's edition of MacIntyre's Big Sting (Five, 8pm), Donal has teamed up with police on Humberts to lure blokes who've failed to show up in court on assault or driving charges - a plan which involves tempting them with invites to the launch of this fictional TV channel, complete with free booze and the chance to go home 20 grand the richer. Naturally, his victims aren't entirely chuffed when they find out what's really going on. Brave man, Donal.

Talking of hospitals, Jess has got her eye on someone new in tonight's Holby City (BBC1, 8pm). Or to be more accurate, Dopey Donna has - suggesting he could fill the gap in Jess's life left by Zubin. It's Holby's new anaesthetist, Sean - and the moment Jess insists she's not interested in this bloke we know exactly where this one is heading.

Charlie Catchpole ...on last night's telly

MILLIONS of devout Christians in America are convinced that Judgment Day is nigh, and when the celestial trumpet sounds, they'll be whisked straight up to Heaven. Whoosh. See y'all. Armageddon outta here.

They follow a movement known as The Rapture, which takes the New Testament's Book of Revelations literally and presents an unmissable target for a documentary like PUTTING THE FUN IN FUNDAMENTAL (C4).

The title of the first of a five-part series about extreme religions was Beam Me Up, Jesus - which indicated that what followed wasn't likely to be particularly sympathetic. It was fun all right - in a shooting-fish-in-a-barrel sort of way.

Reporter Elliott Gerner seemed taken aback that everyone he encountered in America's Bible Belt was so darned NICE. As a result, he seemed reluctant to really sink his teeth into the hand that was feeding him lines.

Weirdos

Most of his jibes were half-hearted, and the programme was content to offer up a collection of oddballs and weirdos for our amusement and leave it at that.

And what a collection it was, including Chaplain Scott and his born-again Christian bikers. Scott wore a ZZ Top beard and a row of "Jesus bullets" on his jacket, representing the seven slugs that went through him when he was shot by hoodlums.

Asked if he'd ever shot anyone himself, Scott said he did shoot his wife, but that was an accident. One biker summed up his creed: "I cuss and drink and whore around with women. But I pray every night and apologise."

Gerner asked one convert how he felt about being beamed up to Heaven, and he replied: "I feel excited. Can you imagine a world where there's no pain, there's no sorrow, no drugs, no swearing, no immorality, no divorce?" For a Channel 4 programme controller, that would be a living hell.

TODAY'S ANSWERS IN TOMORROW'S STAR

The Daily Star has a box-set of Friends to the limit. Friends Fans can top up their collections with a buy-one-get-one-free offer on all Friends singles. Thanks to Warner Home Video, Friends box-sets will also be sold at half the recommended price. Both these offers will run until January.

If you know today's word made up from the letters in the shaded boxes, call 0905 072 1415 or text KRISS your answer name, and address to 83426. Calls cost 75ppm from a BT landline (average call length 2 min), texts cost £1 plus your usual network rate. Winners will be selected at random from all entries received by midnight tonight. Usual Daily Star rules apply.

Prize Arrowword

In this puzzle, the clues are all inside the grid. Simply follow the arrows to enter your answers.

The Daily Star has three Russell Hobbs Classic Balmoral Jug Kettles (Model No 11252) worth £39.99 to be won today. For stockists call 0845 658 9700.

If you know today's word made up from the letters in the shaded boxes, call 0905 072 1416 or text ARROW your answer, name and address details to 83426. Calls cost 75ppm from a BT landline (average call length 2 min), texts cost £1 plus your usual network rate. Winners will be selected at random from all entries received by midnight tonight. Usual Daily Star rules apply.

CAN you crack the Alphabeater? It's a twist on our popular Alphapuzzle, designed to stretch your mental muscles to the limit. Each grid number represents a letter - or black square. As in Alphapuzzle, every letter of the alphabet is used. But now you have to complete the grid too! Use the given letter or letters and the given black square or squares - below the main grid - to start.

To add to the fiendish fun, Alphabeater is 'rotationally symmetrical'. So, for example, if there is a six-letter word Across which starts in the top left corner, there will be a corresponding six-letter word Across which ends in the bottom right corner square. Every black square has one such symmetrical 'twin', but the 'twin' may not always share the same number. This can help you identify other black squares.

Of course, if the centre square is black, it has no corresponding 'twin'. Solution tomorrow.

Stuck? Try the Extra Letter Line below: (Deduct three minutes for each extra clue letter heard.) Callers will also be given two black square numbers free of any penalty.

Calls cost 75p per minute from BT landlines.

TARGET TIME: 37 minutes

Yesterday's solution:

Black squares: 1, 15, 20, 23-31, 38, 40.

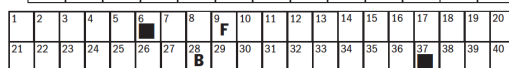

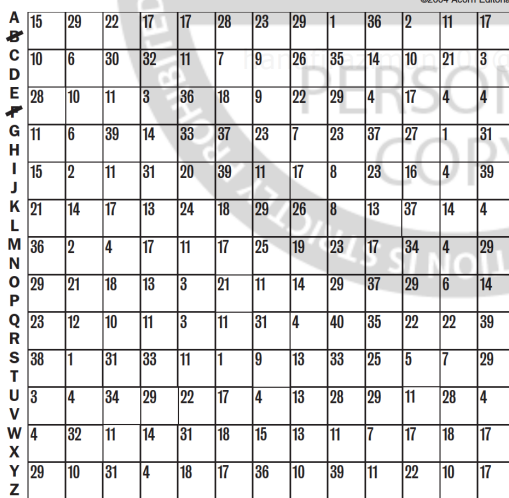

Across: Tailwind, Awake, Exemption, Rid, They, Veiled, Logjam, Assize, Mahout, Skid, Poi, Oolivious, Onion, Psalter, Down: Theft, Lamppost, Iceberg, Mimic, Wipe, Fashion, Noises, Quails, Analyst, Oval, Board, Irksome, Verdure, Dusky.

JANE O'GORMAN SOLVES YOUR PROBLEMS TODAY AND EVERY DAY

So-called friends snub me

EVER since my mother died last July, I've noticed people are shunning me.

Neighbours actively cross the road to avoid talking to me and other people put their heads down to escape eye contact.

I feel like I am a social outcast. I admit that I did take my mum's death very badly and hid myself away for many, many weeks. But just as I'm beginning to feel that I would like to speak to friends again, they are rejecting me.

My partner says folk are naturally embarrassed by death and probably don't know what to say to me. But this feeling of isolation is horrible.

I feel like a leper and I know that there have been lots of parties and get-togethers I haven't been invited to.

JANE SAYS: Your partner is right. Many people don't know how to behave around a bereaved person.

Inevitably, we take the cowards' way out and sidestep the issue, because we're scared of saying the wrong thing and rubbing salt into the wounds.

Contact CRUISE Bereavement Care (0870 167 1677). This charity will not only be able to offer you help and support but can also put you in touch with other bereaved people who know what you're going through.

Perhaps the first step towards getting your friends back would be to organise your own get-together. But only consider it if you're feeling strong enough.

HUBBY UP TO NO GOOD

I WASN'T keen on my husband taking a job 150 miles from home but he convinced me that it was a great idea.

The money was so good that we'd be able to pay off our mortgage quickly and realise our dream of opening a bar in Spain. Besides, he argued, he'd be home every weekend, so we would have more quality time together.

Well, he's been doing his new job for six months now and I hardly ever see him at all. There always seems to be a different reason why he can't get home. Either his boss is demanding extra shifts or he's catching up with paperwork.

Admittedly the bills are being paid but I can rarely get hold of him.

A few nights ago I rang his bedsit and a woman answered. She said that she was his cleaner but his whole room is only about 12ft square. She had a kind of sneer in her voice as if she was laughing at me. The next day I managed to track my husband down. He was really shy and demanded to know why I was "checking up on him".

I'm confused. Isn't a wife allowed to call her husband any more? Should I be concerned?

JANE SAYS: It doesn't sound too good, does it? Your husband may be blaming his job for his absence but no one works seven days a week. If he really wanted to get home, then he would.

Go to his workplace and pay him a surprise visit. Ask to meet his colleagues and suggest you all go out for a drink together.

Take your overnight bag with you and insist on a saucy weekend in his famous bedsit.

Sadly, if he is playing away from home, then you'll need to start talking about where this leaves your marriage.

My dirty cyber sex sessions

FOR the past three months I've been having cyber sex with a guy I used to go to school with.

My husband always goes to bed early, so once he's out of the way, I hit the computer and really let rip.

I'm naughty once I get going. I tell my ex-classmate what I'm doing to myself as he talks dirty. I describe how I stroke my hard nipples and run my fingers between my legs. In return, he fantasises about us having sex in our old school hall. He loves the idea of shocking all our old teachers and friends with our wicked antics.

Hot

As a punishment, I purr that I'd take him to the headmaster's study and spank his bare bottom with leather – which really turns him on.

We don't hang up until we've both orgasmed at least twice each. Often we're online for up to three hours at a time. Believe me, that phone line is red hot by the time we're finished. My husband doesn't have the first clue about any of it because I pay the phone bills and always make sure the spare room door is firmly locked.

The only problem is that I've now received an invitation to a reunion at our old school. My cyber lover says he can't wait to see me again and has even suggested nipping off to a local motel for real sex.

But I haven't been entirely truthful with him. He still remembers me as the slim, blonde thing that even the teachers fancied. But I'm totally different now. I haven't mentioned the fact that I'm a good size 20, with short brown hair and stretch-marks like train tracks. Suddenly I'm feeling a bit of an idiot.

JANE SAYS: Even though you're not actually seeing or touching your old school friend, this cyber sex is wrong.

Emotionally you are cheating on your husband. While he thinks that you're watching late night TV, you're talking another man into a state of orgasm. You're being intimate and indiscreet.

How do you think you'd feel if you discovered that your hubby was talking dirty and encouraging another woman to touch herself? I understand that this cyber sex is exciting, but you're not being honest with your husband, your ex-school friend or – perhaps most significantly – yourself.

Do the right thing and finish this game. If you're unhappy about attending the reunion because of your weight, then use this incentive to go and see your GP for a diet sheet.

Also think about getting more exercise and joining your husband in bed for a few early nights...

Girl's nookie fears

I MADE the mistake of telling my girlfriend that I'd once had cancer. Now she's making every excuse under the sun not to have sex with me.

A few nights ago I managed to force her into talking about it and she finally admitted that she is terrified of being infected.

She is worried that if I ejaculate inside her, then she might "catch" the cancer too.

I've tried to put her mind at rest and reassure her that I'm in remission. I've also promised always to use a condom but she's still rejecting me.

I love her so much and just want us to have a normal relationship but I feel her slipping away from me – and I don't know what to do about it.

JANE SAYS: Your girlfriend doesn't sound like the most sensitive or mature woman in the world.

Do you think that she'd be more reassured if your GP or a cancer expert were to explain the facts to her?

Why don't you talk to her again and find out how far she's willing to go to find out more? If the reality is that she just wants a way out, then I'm afraid that you're going to have to let her go.

As for you, why don't you contact the CANCERBACUP helpline on 0800 800 1234, between 9am and 8pm.

A nurse will be able to reassure you that cancer is not contagious and offer you support and advice on coping and moving on. There is also a website at www.cancerbacup.org.uk.

Movers & groovers

FAST-growing Monsternob, provider of mobile phone ringtones and games, is tuning in to overseas expansion by taking a stake in Far East rival UnrealMind Interactive. The AIM-listed firm is paying £1.7 million for a 29% stake in UnrealMind, which is based in Malaysia and operates in countries including Indonesia and Vietnam, with the massive Chinese market top of its list of new territories.

THE Cadillac appeared in British showrooms with right hand drive yesterday for the first time ever as Britain's biggest motor dealer Pendragon has become sole distributor of Cadillac and Corvette products here. Dealers of GM's Vauxhall did sell them in the UK until five years ago but they were available only on request for special import and were left hand drives. The first Cadillac showroom was opened yesterday in London.

IAN Much is keeping himself busy since retiring this year as chief exec of De La Rue, the banknote printer and co-owner of National Lottery group Camelot. He was appointed yesterday as a part-time director of Chemring, the defence engineering group. It is unlikely to be as exciting as his other boardroom job as a non-executive director at Manchester United.

THE wind industry is expanding and has enjoyed a record year for investment. Predicted expansion should bring £7 billion of new investment by the year 2010, according to the British Wind Energy Association. New figures showed 10 new wind projects have already been commissioned this year and two more will be commissioned by the end of December - three times as many as last year.

GORDON Brown's Pre-Budget Report on December 2 is not going to make many waves, according to a briefing note from Ernst & Young yesterday. The Report and the subsequent Budget "are all about votes... raising taxes is the last thing that the Chancellor will contemplate".

THE DEALER

HOT GOSSIP

STAND by for more armed forces deals over the next few weeks from Scotty Group, 0.5p higher at 4.5p yesterday after winning a contract with Eurocopter Deutschland to supply satellite-based communications systems. A deal with Telecom Italia is also thought to be imminent.

SIR Richard Branson's Virgin Group is considering a float of Virgin Mobile USA in a move that would value it at around £1.1 billion.

Branson is watching the share price of his 75% owned Virgin Mobile in the UK, whose telly ads have featured US pop star Christina Aguilera (pictured), before making a final decision.

Shares closed up 0.25p at 202.25p yesterday. He is also monitoring the increasingly competitive US mobile market. But a flotation is expected in the second half of next year. Branson has said he intends to float most of the companies in his privately-owned empire following the listing of Aussie airline Virgin Blue and Virgin Mobile in the UK.

He'll use the cash raised to invest in new ventures such as Virgin Galactic - which plans to carry fee-paying passengers into space. Virgin Mobile USA is one of the country's fastest growing companies, winning a million customers in each of the two years it's operated.

Dutch lose their Barings

THE Dutch bank that rescued scandal-hit Barings nearly a decade ago is to sever its last links to one of the oldest names in British banking. ING bought Barings for a nominal £1 after it was brought to the brink of collapse by rogue trader Nick Leeson in 1995. It announced last night that it is to sell its Baring Asset Management business to the American investment house MassMutual Financial Group and the Barings financial service arm to the Chicago-based Northern Trust. MassMutual has pledged to retain the Baring title and run it as an independent business with the same management. The price was not disclosed. Northern Trust is paying £260 million for Baring's financial services offshoot. The sale of BAM will generate a gain of £175.6m for ING. The deal is subject to regulatory approval.

WHO'S DEALING

SHARES in Porvair, which makes specialist materials for products including protective clothing, were steady at 103.5p as chief executive Christopher Tyler took his maiden stake. He picked up 5,000 shares at 104p while chairman Ben Stocks took his holding to 81,050 after buying 10,000.

Astra's £75m drugs deal...

GIANT pharmaceutical outfit AstraZeneca took steps yesterday to beef up its pipeline of new drugs.

The US company signed a five-year tie-up with British biotech group Cambridge Antibody Technology. AstraZeneca, whose shares slumped last Friday over safety concerns for its cholesterol-busting drug Crestor, said it was paying £75 million for 10.2 million new shares. That gives them a 20% stake in the

by TONY LEONARD

Cambridge-based group as part of the drugs development deal.

The two firms will research human antibodies, the body's natural immune defences, to find new treatments for inflammatory disorders such as rheumatoid arthritis, as well as lung diseases.

They will invest a total of at least £94.2m during the five years and conduct at least 25 research programmes.

Following the five-year "discovery phase", the two companies can each choose whether to continue to fund the programmes into the development phase.

Needs

Peter Chamber, chief executive for CAT, said: "This creates a major strategic alliance that meets both our needs."

Sir Tom McKillop, chief executive officer of AstraZeneca, added: "This alliance is a major component of our strategy to develop new therapeutics for inflammatory and respiratory diseases."

AstraZeneca is facing pressure to strengthen its pipeline of new drugs as sales of its ulcer treatment Prilosec face competition from cypocyt products.

There are also increasing regulatory hurdles. Its blood-thinning drug Exanta recently failed to get US regulatory approval. Shares in CAT leapt 34.25p to 598.

ABBEY BANKS ON SHARE LIST

ABBEY National yesterday said new owner Banco Santander was working as quickly as possible to get a share price listing on the London Stock Exchange. The move will allow Abbey's 1.8 million private shareholders to track progress of their investment following the £9.6 billion takeover. The former building society's shares were delisted 15 years after it went public.

Most investors opted to swap Abbey shares for those of Santander, but many have been left unable to check the price of their new shares which trade on the Madrid market.

Santander has applied for a secondary listing in London which would mean its share price is quoted in pounds and pence for the benefit of UK shareholders.

"We don't know exactly when it will happen," said a spokeswoman.

However, the company features the Santander share price on its website www.aboutabbey.com.

Abbey shares ceased trading on November 12 at 643.5p. Investors who held them on that date are due a 31p per share dividend on December 14.

WATER FRAUD PROBE

WATER company Severn Trent is investigating staff over claims of false accounting.

And the water regulator Ofwat is considering its own inquiry into the claims that customers have been overcharged.

The privatised firm's income and debt reporting manager David Donnelly went public with the allegations at the weekend.

He claimed the company reduced its profits by £75 million over several years to be allowed to hike its prices.

Names

Severn Trent refused to say yesterday whether anyone at board level was subject to its investigation.

It added: "We don't think it's fair to employees to name names."

After Donnelly's claims - first made in May - the company hired "forensic" accountants from Price-waterhouse-Coopers to conduct a five-month inquiry. They concluded customers had not been overcharged.

But Severn Trent admitted that there was evidence of "some behaviour that the board believes falls short of the high standards it expects from employees".
